The only complete series of law reports in Hong Kong - since 1842.

Clear, cohesive and consistent headnoting in HKC provides you quick answers without having to pore through hundreds of pages of judgments, helping you stay ahead of the game.

Hong Kong Cases reports judgments which have been carefully selected based on the legal value of the case, frequently reporting cases with legal points which might not have been previously dealt with. The headnotes are drafted to give you a clear and succinct summary of the material facts and the principle of law applied by the court in reaching its decision. Reporting case law going back to 1842, this law report series has been regularly lauded for its style, providing case details and in-depth analysis with the practitioner in mind.

Consultant Editorial Board:

- PY Lo, Barrister, General Editor
- I Grenville Cross, SBS, QC, SC, Director of Public Prosecutions, Hong Kong (1997-2009); Vice-Chairman, Senate, International Association of Prosecutors, Sentencing Editor
- WS Clarke, BA, LLB, LLM, General Editor (2007-2018)
- Vinci WS Lam, Senior Assistant Director of Public Prosecutions
- Malcolm Merry, Barrister, Adjunct Professor and Former Head of the Department of Professional Legal Education, Faculty of Law, University of Hong Kong
- Judith Sihombing, Faculty of Law, Chinese University of Hong Kong

"When research is being conducted on a particular legal point, the judges, practitioners and academics, like to have a quick entree into the judgment so they know what it's about and whether it's worth reading the whole thing in order to help solve the particular legal problem which they are facing. Headnotes have always had that role, and have always been very popular with lawyers but I think headnotes are even more important now because judgments have become much longer than they used to be."

The only comprehensive collection of conveyancing and property case law in Hong Kong.

Aimed at helping you refine your case law research to cater to your specific interests in conveyancing and property cases, providing clear and succinct headnotes for ease of reference.

This series is an essential reference for all legal practitioners involved in property and conveyancing work in Hong Kong. Covering conveyancing and property decisions from all Hong Kong courts from the period 1980 to present, this series would be invaluable to all practitioners in this area of law, as well as real estate agents, property developers, property managers and building professionals. Cases have been selected based on practical relevance and importance to local practitioners, including previously unreported cases, particularly from the Lands Tribunal.

- PY Lo, LLB (London), Barrister of the English and Hong Kong Bars

- GN Cruden, Former Presiding Officer, Lands Tribunal

"Their Lordships regard the use of precedent as an indispensable foundation upon which to decide what is the law and its application to individual cases. It provides at least some degree of certainty upon which individuals can rely in the conduct of their affairs, as well as a basis for orderly development of legal rules."

Butterworths Hong Kong Personal Injury Service aims to provide a practical research tool through the personal injury minefield, by analysing relevant cases in the field and considering issues of practice and procedure that arise in the context of personal injury litigation.

Provides a functional research tool through the personal injury minefield, by analysing relevant cases in the field and considering issues of practice and procedure that arise in the context of personal injury litigation.

The work covers all stages of litigation, from the initial interview with client, to judgment and costs after trial. Detailed chapters outline the general formulae for assessment of damages, with thorough examination of possible claims by dependents, including a comparison of statutory provisions in Hong Kong with those in England and Wales. In addition, all aspects of employees' compensation claims are given extensive coverage, such as liability, insurance and quantum. The service includes a vast collection of cases systematically arranged according to particular types of injuries and specific heads of damage, providing practitioners with an easy reference to local precedents. Relevant figures, such as the 'Pain, suffering and Loss of Amenities' amounts for each case are updated to take into account the latest inflation rates.

Criminal Procedure: Trial on Indictment is a two volume looseleaf set that seeks to provide clarity and certainty in facilitating access to the laws relating to procedure in Hong Kong, in relation to trial, or other disposal of indictable offences.

The only authoritative source you need for succinct, comprehensive and practical explanation on the rules surrounding criminal procedure cases in Hong Kong, an invaluable personal guide for the criminal law practitioner.

This two volume looseleaf set seeks to provide clarity and certainty in facilitating access to the laws relating to procedure in criminal cases, in relation to trial, or other disposal of indictable offences. Particular emphasis has been accorded to those topics with which a criminal law practitioner must contend with on a frequent basis. Such topics include enforcement proceedings, arrest and detention, bail, indictments and charge sheets, trial of indictments before the High Court and trial of proceedings transferred to the District Court, appeals, reviews and costs in criminal proceedings. The text also provides an overview of the criminal legal system in Hong Kong.

Author:

- Andrew Bruce SC, BA, LLB (Australia National University); formerly Senior Assistant Director of Public Prosecution, Department of Justice, Hong Kong; Queen's Counsel for Hong Kong; Senior Counsel for Hong Kong Special Administrative Region

Table of Contents:

- The criminal legal system
 - Investigation, arrest and detention of persons suspected of crime
- Initiation and pre-trial disposition of criminal proceedings on indictment
- Bail
- Indictments and charge sheets
 - Procedure on indictments before the Court of First Instance
- Procedure on changes transferred to the District Court
- Appeals and reviews in criminal proceedings
- Costs
- Appendices

"One of the most wonderful things about writing a book about criminal procedure is to see in detail and its broad scope what is, for the most part, a wonderful balance between the rights and interests of the parties to criminal proceedings in Hong Kong... Those who reform and meddle with this branch of law should always look both at the detail and the broad scope of law before proceeding with whatever well-intentioned change they propose, to make sure they understand the implications of which they wish to change."

Hong Kong Conveyancing is a renowned reference work, with over 20 years heritage in Hong Kong, and still remains the only reference work dealing with this subject in Hong Kong.

The only authoritative source you need for a comprehensive and complete reference on the application of law on conveyancing practice in Hong Kong. The cases and materials volume acts as a one stop point, covering all relevant cases covering this area of law.

This work, presented in two volumes, within eleven looseleaf binders, provides an extensive and detailed description of the law and practice, as well as the development of conveyancing in Hong Kong. Unique in its breadth of coverage, this title is the standard reference for anyone involved in conveyancing transactions and issues relating to land titles and land law generally in Hong Kong. There is now a voluminous amount of case law explaining and developing the land and conveyancing landscape in Hong Kong, thereby requiring the conveyancing practitioner to keep abreast of significant decisions and the application of conveyancing principles. Despite having achieved a degree of certainty in some aspects through recent decisions out of the Hong Kong courts, there remain some points of contention. This work aims to report, discuss and expound on these contentious issues, as well as help facilitate the work of practitioners in all conveyancing transactions.

"The Court looks at substance rather than form. If an employee was threatened that he would be dismissed unless he resigned, the Court may hold such 'resignation' to be constructive dismissal. However, if the 'resignation' was motivated by other facts, such as financial benefits or a reference letter, the termination might be a voluntary resignation notwithstanding that the employee was told either to resign or be dismissed."

The Professional Conduct of Lawyers in Hong Kong is an unrivalled text on professional conduct and ethics in Hong Kong, providing in-depth analysis on the application of the Bar Code, the Prosecution Code and the Hong Kong Solicitors' Guide to Professional Conduct.

An unrivalled text on professional conduct and ethics in Hong Kong, providing in-depth analysis on the application of the Bar Code, the Prosecution Code and the Hong Kong Solicitors' Guide to Professional Conduct.

This 5 binder looseleaf title is intended to provide up-to-date information, discussion, and analysis of practice and principle, of legislation and regulation of the legal profession in Hong Kong. Legal practitioners, be it solicitors, barristers, the judiciary, government lawyers, prosecutors, in-house counsel, foreign and overseas lawyers or students, have become particularly susceptible to the interplay of regulation with professional responsibility considerations when taking up the task of advising and representing clients. The text is aimed at assisting practitioners in staying alert to duties and responsibilities, and understanding and maintaining the high standards of conduct that are expected of the legal profession in Hong Kong.
